The invention relates to a current-voltage converter comprising an oscillator having an input for receiving an input current, a first amplifier stage connected to the oscillator and having a first input for receiving an input voltage, a second amplifier stage connected to the oscillator and having a second input for receiving a reference voltage, a first capacitor connected between the first amplifier stage and the second amplifier stage, a second capacitor connected between the first amplifier stage and the oscillator, a transistor connected as a diode-connected transistor between the second amplifier stage and the oscillator, and a current feedback circuit for applying to the transistor a current which varies in dependence on the input voltage applied to the first amplifier stage. The invention further relates to a radio receiver comprising a band-pass filter, an amplifier stage, a radio frequency (RF) amplifier, a demodulator, a frequency converter and a control circuit for the frequency converter and the demodulator. The invention further relates to a radio transmitter comprising a band-pass filter, an amplifier stage, an RF amplifier, a frequency converter and a control circuit for the frequency converter and the demodulator. The invention further relates to a current-voltage converter and a radio receiver comprising a current-voltage converter. The invention further relates to a current-voltage converter and a radio transmitter comprising a current-voltage converter. Such converters are known in the art. An example of such a converter is illustrated in FIG. 1. An oscillator circuit 10 is connected to a first amplifier stage 20 and to a second amplifier stage 30. A first capacitor 40 is connected between the first amplifier stage 20 and the second amplifier stage 30. A second capacitor 50 is connected between the first amplifier stage 20 and the oscillator. A transistor 60 is connected as a diode-connected transistor between the second amplifier stage
